

Furthering a Tradition of Grassroots Giving

2005 Annual Report – Expanding Connections

In our twenty-first year, Rex strengthened its presence and giving capacity through continued outreach to an increasingly broad base of supporters and collaborators. Musicians and fans came together for a benefit concert at Berkeley's Greek Theater for "Comes a Time," a celebration of the creative and humanitarian legacy of Jerry Garcia and the Grateful Dead. Black Tie-Dye Balls in New York and Washington, DC, initiated new relationships with grassroots organizations in those communities. In partnership with The Libra Foundation, Rex identified and lent support to California organizations promoting environmental justice, conservation and preservation, and sustainable agriculture. Word spread across the internet about the Rex Community Caravan, and new riders joined our philanthropic journey. This report describes the 2005 Rex Awards and Grants, events and fundraising activities, and collaborations.

HOW REX WORKS

The Rex Foundation has no paid board members. Virtually all of our grant recipients are selected through the personal knowledge and outreach of our decision makers – as a result, grant requests are not solicited. We have no application forms and no published guidelines. Grants are made once or twice a year, and our report is published annually.

From the Executive Director

Recently I was asked about my vision of the future of the Rex Foundation given that our origins are so tied to the Grateful Dead and the support of Deadheads. My smile broadened as I reflected on the last 4+ years of renewal, particularly all that happened in 2005, and what these experiences signify for the future.

Since December 2001, when we launched the renewal of the Rex Foundation with The Healing Power of Music at the Warfield Theater in San Francisco, we have raised $1.1 million and granted $676,000 to 109 grassroots programs across the U.S. and internationally. Adding to the base of grant making that occurred between 1984 and 1995, the Rex Foundation has now granted $8 million to over 1,000 programs.

With our renewal efforts we have endeavored to create events which raise funds for grant making while also fostering community connection, creativity and collaboration for social change. The renewal seeds we have been planting these last few years are flowering. What is most heartening is that we are not only continuing to connect with the musicians and Deadheads already familiar with our work, but also, and increasingly, with the new generation of musicians, fans and philanthropic organizations who want to be part of our efforts.

As you read through this report you will see the different ways we have connected with people to create collaborations that fund vital grassroots programs like those described here, and bring us together as a grassroots philanthropic community. The added spark in these activities is the quality of the musical experiences generated by the creativity and positive energy of the musicians, who generously contributed their time and talents to participate in our Black Tie-Dye Balls and the Comes A Time benefit.

Because of the successes of our 2005 endeavors, we granted $110,000 during the year and began 2006 by distributing another $85,000. Each of you receiving this report is in some way responsible for these successes. As you look at the phrase sitting beside our logo – Furthering a Tradition of Grassroots Giving – take credit for being part of what we are doing to continue what the Grateful Dead and fans started at that first Rex benefit concert in the spring of 1984. I look forward to traveling the road ahead with you on the virtual bus of the Rex Community Caravan. – Sandy Sohcot

Partnerships for Grant Making

This year, Rex expanded a partnership with The Libra Foundation, a family foundation that aims to unite the global struggle for human rights with U.S. social justice work. The Libra Foundation's grant of $30,000 was for grassroots programs in California working on sustainable agriculture, environmental justice, and environmental preservation, conservation and restoration. Rex also received grants from two other family foundations to support youth in San Francisco and environmental sustainability in California. Support from these foundations represents recognition by the philanthropic community of the Rex Foundation's track record for identifying worthy programs that larger, more traditional funding sources overlook. The Rex Foundation thanks its funding partners for their generosity and trust and looks forward to continuing to work together.

Rex Foundation as Designated Beneficiary

In 2005 Rex was designated the beneficiary of several music-related events across the country. In July 2005, the Rex Foundation was part of the 10,000 Lakes Festival in Detroit Lakes, Minnesota. On September 1st, Rex was named the beneficiary of a reception Palisades Financial held in connection with the concert in New York's Central Park featuring Bob Weir & Ratdog and Bruce Hornsby & the Noisemakers. On October 21st, Dark Star Orchestra's concert at the Fillmore in San Francisco was designated as a Rex fundraiser. The Rex Foundation is grateful for the support of everyone involved in these events.

Rex Community Caravan

The Rex Community Caravan, fully initiated in 2005, is gaining momentum on the Internet's superhighway. Rex seeks to engage supporters with the reach of the World Wide Web, encouraging participation at any level of contribution. For five dollars, or more, supporters get on board the Caravan, and we are connected as a philanthropic community creating ripples far and wide.

REX EVENTS – A MUSICAL YEAR

The Rex Foundation held three very special benefit concerts in late 2005, furthering endeavors to host events in cities throughout the United States. In the Bay Area, the Jerry Garcia Estate LLC partnered with the Rex Foundation for a one-of-a-kind celebration of Jerry Garcia's music and spirit. In Washington, DC and New York City, Rex collaborated with local volunteers and businesses to produce Black Tie-Dye Ball events and identify beneficiaries in those regions. During the last few months of the year, images from Hurricane Katrina's destruction reminded us all of the universal importance of community, compassion and respect for people beyond our immediate circles. Taking concerts "on the road" enables Rex to expand its reach while staying true to its commitment to fostering service at the local level.

The Jerry Garcia Estate presented an inspirational musical tribute to Jerry Garcia, with proceeds going to the Rex Foundation. Under the musical direction of Bob Weir, with the participation of Bill Kreutzmann and Mickey Hart, five hours of Jerry Garcia music was performed by an incredible line-up of musicians, including Trey Anastasio, Hamza El Din, Brian Godchaux, Warren Haynes, Jimmy Herring, Bruce Hornsby, Jerry Garcia Band musicians Gloria Jones, Jackie LaBranch, Melvin Seals, Marty Holland and Sam Howard, Donna Jean Godchaux-MacKay, David Nelson, Sandy Rothman, The String Cheese Incident musicians Jason Hann, Michael Kang, Keith Moseley and Bill Nershi, Ratdog musicians Kenny Brooks, Jeff Chimenti, Mark Karan, Jay Lane and Robin Sylvester, and very special guest Merl Saunders. The family of Jerry Garcia was there to remark on how important this evening was to carrying on all that Jerry has contributed. It seemed this sentiment was fully affirmed by the musicians as well as the joyful, tearful and deeply grateful audience.

A student combo from the Washington Jazz Art Institute, one of the beneficiary organizations, provided ambient music for the reception that preceded the main performance. In an original set that formed a tapestry of past and present, Donna Jean traded vocals with Dark Star Orchestra's Lisa Mackey.
